

BOOSTERS LEAVE TO BOOST TRADE FOR RICHMOND

Crowds Cheer as Special Train Starts on Tour of Carolinas.

NOBODY CARRIED LIQUOR SAMPLES

Business People to Visit Eastern Carolina Points To-Day, Winding Up With Smoker at Raleigh To-Night—Twenty-Eight Cities Ready to Greet Visitors.

Enthusiastic scenes marked the departure of the Richmond Boosters' special train from Main Street Station this morning. More than 100 business boosters joined in the trip, while nearly as many were at the station to wish them well.

The train left over the Seaboard Air Line Railway at 12:30 o'clock, the first official stop to be made at Rocky Mount, N. C., this morning at 1 o'clock. The Boosters remain there until 1 o'clock, when they leave for series of towns across Eastern Carolina, reaching Raleigh to-night.

The special train made up of four Pullmans, two diners and a baggage car, was placed in Main Street Station at 9 o'clock last night, shortly after which hour the Boosters, with their friends, began to arrive. At midnight the Boosters' Band led by Bandmaster Kessnich, waked the strains of the "Richmond Boosters' March," copies of the music and words of which were distributed.

No Liquor Samples.

The baggage car had been well stocked with advertising matter, novelties and samples for distribution all along the route. By agreement no samples of liquor for distribution were carried. Bertha had already been drawn and each Booster took a proper location and was not long in getting settled. Genial comradeship and good fellowship prevailed. Most of the men were already personal or business acquaintances. Introductions were informal and the new comers were made at home at once.

The chief object of boosting is to boost the way the Boosters' Band will lead the way right up to the main street, and we will show them that Richmond is on the map.

Assistant Chief Booster Horace F. Smith was equally enthusiastic. In arranging for the tour, he visited nearly all of the cities and towns at which stops are to be made, and was assured that in nearly every place the Mayor, the president of the Board of Trade and various committees would be on hand to welcome the Boosters.

"Right there lies the most important feature of the trip," said Mr. Smith. "We are out to boom Richmond, of course; but in the long run we believe we will accomplish more by joining forces with the cities of the Carolinas in a general movement to boom the State. Until these cities get together with the progressive men who are building the cities of the two States of the South, shake their hands and let them know that we are with them in their endeavor to extend our trade facilities and enlarge our enterprises."

"I think that an important feature of the trip," said Mayor Ainslie, "lies in the element of personal contact of men who may have been heretofore doing business by mail. Richmond merchants and banking men will meet and talk with those to whom they sell, and those to whom they hope to sell in the future, and an interchange of this sort must produce beneficial results."

"It is team work," said Secretary Walcott, of the Business Men's Club. "When these Richmond men go out on their trip they forget for a minute that they represent this or that house, or some special line of business. They represent Richmond. They are not out as individuals to solicit orders for the particular firm they are associated with, but have joined forces in a movement to make better trade conditions for all."

Gathered at the station until the train pulled out were a number of those who took part in the movement. Some were unable to join in the movement this year, but who, having seen what it has accomplished, were in hearty sympathy with the plan and by their presence and cheers sent the Boosters forth to continue the good work they had begun.

Some of the boosters who remain in Richmond have been formulated into a general committee with Charles T. Norman, of the Civic Co-Operative Association, and president of the Retail Merchants' Association as its chairman. The object of this committee is to plan a great civic mass-meeting at the City Auditorium next Thursday night to welcome the Richmond Boosters on their return.

Committees have been named and plans are being rapidly perfected for a great civic parade with bands of music, red lights and fire works, from Seventh and Broad Streets to the Auditorium. In this parade will be the members of the Chamber of Commerce, the Business Men's Club, the Retail Merchants' Association, the United Commercial Travelers, the Advertisers' Club, the Civic Co-Operative Association and the South Richmond and Chesapeake Business Men's Association.

POLICE URGED TO PROTECT GIRLS FROM EVIL HAND

Ministers, Aroused by Recent Disclosures, Condemn System.

THINK PENALTY ENTIRELY TOO LAX

Mr. Wells Asserts That Vices Now Classed as Misdemeanors Should Be Raised to Felonies—Conditions Show That Parents Must Be More Alert.

Aroused by recent disclosures of crimes against young girls in this city, ministers yesterday denounced from their pulpits in no uncertain terms the shortcomings of a civilization, and in particular the so-called weakness of a local police system, which permits itself to wallow in a mire of social decay and shuts its eyes to a reign of immorality which is striking at the life of the city and nation.

A dozen congregations listened with quickening conscience to the arraignment of the agencies in a modern life which loosen morals, wreck homes, and spread contagion to be transmitted to unborn generations. The yellow press with its magnification of crime and its sordid news stories, the decadent stage with its portrayal of loose morals, the suggestive modern novels with its sensuous depiction of glossed-over vice—came in for a share of the pulpit's fire.

Rev. Frank L. Wells, pastor of the Broad Street Methodist Church, devoted his sermon last night to an inquiry into the immediate causes of the evil in Richmond, and to the suggestion of a course of action which might result in its mitigation.

Up to the police, said the pastor, appeal must be made for a stricter enforcement of the law against crimes of this nature than has hitherto been the case. Penalties for infractions of this class, he said, have been wholly too lax and infrequent. "Every now and then," said Mr. Wells, "we hear a little stir about breaking up the crowds of sports who hang out on the Broad Street corners and ogle every woman who passes and make remarks about her, but the sports still stand at the corners and nothing seems to be done about it. You men who vote can break it up if you will."

"You go as individuals to the police commissioners and ask them to enforce certain laws, and you are apt to be told to produce evidence of violation and the case will be attended to. An aroused public opinion should say to those responsible for the enforcement of law that they have been put in their positions, and their salaries are paid, by the tax-paying citizens of the city, and it is not your business as individuals to police the city, but it is their business."

"It is not your business to be detective and prosecutors, but it is their business and you are going to see that they do it or get somebody who will. This is a matter of too much importance to be trifled with."

In his analysis of the causes underlying the vice-wave which seems to be sweeping over the city as well as the country at large, Mr. Wells took up one after the other the chief sources of infection. Poverty and squalid surroundings, ignorance of the elementary laws and sexual hygiene, inherited animosity, and lack of parental discipline, he said, were the main contributing causes. Until these are remedied, at least moderately, thought the minister, little hope can be held out.

To the more potent evils just named, Mr. Wells added the insidious influence of present day fashions in dress. A reform of feminine fashions along sane lines, he said, is imperative to moral welfare. On this point the preacher said:

"It is by no means a matter of small importance that there should be a reform in dress which will bring us to the modest fashions of former years. I believe no thoughtful person will gainsay the fact that the response of our women to the dictates of fashion is playing a part, and not small part, in the spread of immorality."

The minister denounced as one of the contributing causes of social vice, the culture of naturalistic and pagan theories of life. He defined a subtle influence at work breaking down public opinion concerning immorality with a corresponding tendency, distinctly developed, though slowly developed, to justify vice by appeal to the principles of naturalism and materialism. A sentiment has gained with influence, he said, which condones the excesses of vice on the ground that it is natural.

Mr. Wells brought indictments against three institutions which, he said, were largely guilty of proclaiming this pagan philosophy of life. The yellow press was the first of these. "There are some newspapers," he said, "that have become cesspools into which are dumped every possible crime, every sort of sensation that is coarse and low and suggestive. Persons who have no claim to be mentioned on the outside of a small circle, and then only with pity or contempt, are made notorious and national, because of some sin or shame or villainy with which they were connected. This moral corruption is made the daily topic of conversation among men and women who are sup-

WILSON WILL NOT DISCUSS NEW YORK

Nominee Is Grimly Silent on Political Situation in Empire State.

STARTS ON TRIP TO WEST

In Speeches Will Discuss Principally the Tariff and Trusts.

On Board Governor Wilson's Special Car, Harrisburg, Pa., September 15.—Grimly silent on the New York State situation, but turning his eyes expectantly westward, Governor Woodrow Wilson traveled through Pennsylvania to-night en route to Iowa, South Dakota, Minnesota and Michigan. He said he had nothing more to say at present. "I have nothing more to say at present," was the candidate's reply to questions concerning the contest for the gubernatorial nomination in New York. He said he expected to discuss principally, however, the tariff and the trusts. The Governor has prepared the speech he is to deliver on Friday at Columbus in connection with the opening of the Ohio campaign. "The Abandoned Issues," is the title he has given to it.

Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Taft incidentally have abandoned the tariff and the trusts to us," smiled the Governor, "probably because their platforms present no arguable ground."

Governor Wilson motored early in the afternoon from Seagirt to Trenton, where he boarded the special car which is to carry him throughout the campaign.

Thirteen Again Prevailed. The Governor was quick to note that his lucky number—thirteen—prevailed in his party, for besides himself and secretary there are nine correspondents and two stenographers.

The Governor's youthful cousin, Fitz William Mackmaster Woodrow, of Columbia, S. C., rode with him from Seagirt to Trenton. Young Woodrow enters Princeton University as a freshman next week and came to get a few letters on university life from the former president of the institution.

The Governor announced to-night the Iowa itinerary.

He will arrive at Sioux City, Iowa, Tuesday morning, speaking at the Interstate Fair during the day, but has arranged now to speak at night at Sioux Falls, S. D.

They pressed so hard at Sioux Falls to have us stop there," said the Governor, "that we simply had to do it. They even have arranged a special train to carry us on to Minneapolis and St. Paul."

After his two engagements in Minnesota on Wednesday, the Governor will speak at Detroit on Thursday and Columbus on Friday, returning to Seagirt on Saturday.

Seagirt, N. J., September 15.—If Governor John A. Dix, of New York, insists on remaining a candidate for re-election in spite of the warning sounded at Syracuse by Governor Woodrow Wilson, and if Leader Murphy insists upon keeping Dix in the field as a candidate, it is very probable that Governor Wilson will put New York on his schedule for one or more speeches, and have something definite to say.

Friends of Governor Wilson called attention to the parallel of Governor Wilson's opening up on Boss Murphy in New York and his opening up, two years ago, on Boss Smith in New Jersey. In the New Jersey case, Governor Wilson first expressed private indignation at the conduct of the Senator, and then kept out of the race for re-election to the Senate. Then he sent word to Smith that he would have something to say if he persisted. It was several months after he first indicated that his views were before Governor Wilson was hitting the hard blows that put Smith out of the running.

TORNADO SWEEPS TEN-MILE TRAIL

Three Persons Killed and Fifty Injured in Syracuse Section.

$250,000 PROPERTY LOSS

Farm Houses and Barns Blown Down, Crops Ruined and Cattle Destroyed.

Syracuse, N. Y., September 15.—Three persons were killed and fifty injured by a tornado which worked a ten-mile trail of destruction across the northern part of Onondaga County late to-day. The property loss is estimated at $250,000.

Without any warning of its approach, the black, funnel-shaped cloud first appeared near Long Branch, a pleasure resort ten miles from this city. About 400 persons were there, and panic followed when building after building toppled over and two massive interurban trolley cars were hurled into a ditch.

A number ran into the dance hall for safety, but this building was directly in the path of the storm and was demolished. Many persons were injured in it. The wind, thunder, lightning and rain were terrific and trees cracked and fell to the ground.

Rushing westward the tornado wrecked the boathouse of the Syracuse University Navy, in which was stored the entire crew equipment. All the shells were wrecked and the loss to the university is more than $8,000. Racing across the country, the tornado leveled everything in its path. Farm houses and barns were blown down. Crops were ruined and scores of head of cattle killed.

North of North Syracuse the devastation continued. Hitcher's Hill was next visited, and the settlement was practically wiped out, fifteen residences, a number of barns and the schoolhouse falling before the whirlwind. The home of H. A. Wendell, which stood in the path of the tornado, was lifted from its foundation and turned completely over. In the house were Mrs. Wendell and her three boys, all of whom escaped uninjured.

WILL MEET SEPTEMBER 24

Committee to Begin Investigation of Alleged Primary Fraud. Columbia, S. C., September 15.—Announcement was made to-night that the sub-committee of the Democratic State Committee appointed to investigate charges of fraud in connection with the recent South Carolina primary of the party will meet in Spartanburg, S. C., on September 24. W. F. Stevenson, chairman of the sub-committee, said the meeting would be held here on account of the extensive charges of fraud made in the Piedmont counties in this section of the State. Governor Blewett was renominated by a majority of three thousand votes on the face of the returns.

Warm Weather by Middle of Week

Washington, September 15.—Frosts for the Rocky Mountain region and the upper Mississippi Valley and much cooler weather for the Middle West and the Southwest for Monday and Tuesday are predicted by the Weather Bureau in the weekly bulletin just issued. Warm weather in this section will follow by the middle of the week.

A disturbance that is now over the Ohio Valley will advance eastward and be attended by unsettled weather and rains Monday in the Atlantic States, the region of the Great Lakes and along the Gulf coast.

The next disturbance to cross the country will appear in the far West on Monday or Tuesday, cross the Great Central Valley about Thursday and the Eastern States near the close of the week. Considerably cooler weather will follow this disturbance.

HAYWOOD CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

General Organizer of Industrial Workers Arrested in Boston.

RELEASED ON $1,000 BAIL

Taken Into Custody After Sound- ing Call for Nation- Wide Strike.

Boston, Mass., September 15.—William D. Haywood, of Denver, general organizer of the Industrial Workers of the World, was arrested here to-day on a capias warrant issued as the result of an indictment by the Essex County grand jury, charging him with conspiracy in connection with the strike of textile workers in Lawrence last winter. He was released on $1,000 bail.

The exact nature of the conspiracy with which Haywood is charged was not mentioned in the indictment. Just before his arrest, Haywood, in addressing a mass-meeting of 15,000 persons on Boston Common, had sounded a call for a general strike of New England workers to begin a nationwide movement as a protest against the "arrest, imprisonment and trial of Ettore, Giovanni and Caruso." These three industrial workers, who were active during the Lawrence strike, are charged with complicity to murder in connection with the shooting of a striker, Anna Lopizzo, during a riot in Lawrence last January.

At to-day's meeting banners were displayed calling for the release of the three leaders, and Haywood was cheered when he cried:

"We will open the jail doors or close the mill gates."

In urging a general strike Haywood declared it probably would be a fact by the end of the coming week, and that it surely would come before September 30, the date set for the beginning of the leaders' trials. He advised the assembled workers to begin the strike to-morrow.

"If you leave your benches to-morrow you will make no mistake," he said. "Any time between now and September 30, will do, but the sooner the better. If you go out to-morrow you will be the forerunners, the vanguard of a great movement for freedom."

Haywood declared that such a strike as a movement of general protest would "save lives just as did that great movement of sympathy and support which resulted in the vindication of Moyer, Pettibone and myself." The indictment on which Haywood was arrested was returned by the Essex County grand jury several months ago, and although the State police made preparations to arrest him when it was announced that he would come into the State to-day, no interference with the mass-meeting was attempted. Haywood held a reception on the Common, delivered his speech, and then hurried away through the crowd to one of the Common exits where officers of the State police met him and took him to the police station. He was ordered to appear before the Superior Criminal Court of Essex County at Lawrence to-morrow morning. Bail was furnished by Attorney Frederick H. Moore, of Los Angeles, who has been engaged to defend Ettore, Giovanni and Caruso. To attend the protest meeting on the Common, more than 20,000 of the mill operatives, who were on strike in Lawrence last winter came to Boston in three special trains.

QUIET IN STRIKE ZONE

Answer to Governor's Plan of Arbitration Was Made To-Day. Charleston, W. Va., September 15.—No disorder occurred to-day in the Kanawha strike zone under martial law. Religious services were held at various points. The twenty-one companies of the State militia were inspected by Captain L. C. Jenks, of U. S. A., and General Elliott, of the State Guard.

By noon to-morrow the answer of the miners and coal operators to Governor Glasscock's plan of arbitration is expected to be made public. The miners, it is said, will accept the plan, but the impression prevails that the operators will question the right of the United Mine Workers of America to speak for the large number of nonunion men in the district. Recently the operators raised the point that they would not deal with the union because it could not control all the men.

FAIL IN EFFORTS TO MAKE GUNMEN BREAK SILENCE

Nothing Whatever in Nature of Confession Is Obtained.

'GYP' AND 'LEFTY' BOTH STAND-PAT

Wives of Gangsters and Pick-pocket Arrested in Their Flat Held as Material Witnesses. Men Probably Will Be Arraigned on Formal Murder Charge To-Day.

New York, September 15.—Every effort of police and district attorney to induce "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie" to break their silence has so far failed. The arrest of these two gunmen, completing the round-up of all men wanted in connection with the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, just two months ago to-night, was followed by four hours examination of the new prisoners to-day.

The men were examined separately by Deputy Police Commissioner George S. Dougherty and by Assistant District Attorney Frank Moss in the absence of District Attorney Charles S. Whitman, but according to both men, Dougherty and Moss, "Gyp" and "Lefty" were determined to "stand pat."

Nothing whatever in the nature of a confession could be obtained from them. In an effort to reinforce evidence against the men, the police to-day formally held their wives as material witnesses, as well as a third man, Max Kahn, who the police say is a pickpocket, and who was in the flat with the gunmen and their wives when the detectives broke in upon them at supper last night. All three of these witnesses were arraigned to-day before Coroner Feinberg, and held in $1,000 bail each. The police also seized a large number of papers in the flat where the capture was made.

Mr. Moss said no promise of leniency had been given the prisoners for admission such as some of those concerned in the murder have made, resulting in the indictment of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker as the instigator of the crime.

Horowitz and Rosensweig probably will be arraigned on a formal charge of murdering Rosenthal before a justice of the Supreme Court to-morrow. It is expected that the arraignment will take place in Justice Goff's court. Although the district attorney's office had offered $5,000 for the capture of "Gyp the Blood" and "Lefty Louie," the police detectives who brought about their arrest will not get the reward. The provisions of Mr. Whitman's offer specifically barred the police.

So far as developments here were concerned there was no evidence of friction between the police and the district attorney's office over the handling of the case in its latest phases. Police headquarters scouted the information that there was significance in the fact that the arrest of the two men followed closely upon Mr. Whitman's departure for Hot Springs. It was pointed out that Mr. Moss was called in immediately to represent Mr. Whitman, and given every opportunity to examine the prisoners.

Unbroken Surveillance. The arrests of the two gunmen last night were the result of unbroken surveillance of the wives and relatives of the men since their disappearance on the day of the murder, July 16. This surveillance was maintained by sixty detectives working in relays who kept Deputy Commissioner Dougherty constantly in touch with what they did and where they went. The final clue came as the result of piecing together a number of conversations overheard by detectives and reported to the commissioner at different times. The first conversation was that "they are not long gone because they can see a moving picture show from their back windows."

Another conversation gave the information that there was a laundry in the house where the missing men lived, which was named either the "New Brighton," the "Bright" or the "Brighton Hand Laundry." A third conversation supplied the fact that the neighborhood "was full of Swedes and Germans."

It then became Commissioner Dougherty's task to discover somewhere a hand laundry in proximity to a moving picture show in a vicinity inhabited by foreigners of the nationalities named.

Early yesterday Detectives Meyer and Cassano discovered in Brooklyn the "New Brighton Hand Laundry," which perfectly fitted all requirements.

Watch Apartment. They then set themselves to watch the apartments situated above the laundry, and late in the afternoon were rewarded by seeing "Gyp the Blood's" wife leave the building and do an errand at a store. Both wives had been missing since Tuesday when they cleverly evaded detectives by jumping into a waiting automobile after leaving an "L" train on which they were riding in the direction of Harlem. The detectives then felt certain that they were with their husbands. The women had several other times eluded surveillance by the use of automobiles, but previously had always returned to their homes in New York. The arrest followed as soon as the detectives could collect reinforcements. Commissioner Dougherty said that "Gyp" and "Lefty" had fled immediately after the murder to Parkville, N. Y., a summer resort in the Catskill Mountains, and remained there over a week.

EDWARDS DENIES STORY THAT GIRL BETRAYED HIM

Hillsville Outlaws Will Be Lodged in Roanoke Jail To-Day.

BALDWIN SENDS GOVERNOR WORD

Sidna Allen, Leader of Gang, Will Be Arraigned With Edwards in Carroll County—No Mob Violence Feared. Judge Staples May Preside.

"Gov. William Hodges Mann, Richmond, Va."

"Have both men safe. Will arrive in Roanoke Monday morning."

(Signed) "W. G. BALDWIN." The foregoing telegram received by the Governor shortly before noon yesterday represents the sum total of the information received at the executive mansion from the officers in charge of Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards, the Carroll County outlaws, who were captured Saturday in Des Moines by a trio of Baldwin detectives. The message was filed en route early yesterday.

"I knew nothing more of the capture than has appeared in the newspapers," said Governor Mann last night. "From the message I received to-day, and from the press accounts which I have read, I can see nothing in the whole matter other than the fact that the men have been captured and are now on their way to Virginia. The newspaper accounts of the Des Moines capture of the outlaws with the information I had beforehand, and are substantially correct."

Silent on Reported Betrayal.

Governor Mann was shown a message from Des Moines carrying an account of a confession reported to have been made to Chief of Police Jenney, of that city, by Maude Iroler, the Mount Airy, N. C., sweetheart of Wesley Edwards, who wittingly or unwittingly led the detectives to the above alleged fugitives.

Iroler is to the effect that she had been promised the reward which was offered by Governor Mann for the arrest of the outlaws, and that she intended to return at once and claim it.

"I have nothing to say in regard to this," said the Governor last night when asked by a reporter for The Times-Dispatch for a statement as to its trustworthiness. "I cannot discuss it." In Cincinnati last night Edwards denied the report that Miss Iroler betrayed him.

Indictment in Carroll. The outlaws and their escort are expected to reach Roanoke this morning, and will be lodged in jail there to await further action by the Carroll County authorities. The indictments will have to be formally entered in Carroll County, where the murders were committed. Unless a change of venue is demanded and granted, the trial of Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards will take place in the same courtroom where the judge and court officers were killed.

In all likelihood," said Governor Mann, "Judge Walter R. Staples who tried the other members of the clan, will preside at the trial of Sidna Allen and Wesley Edwards. He is familiar with the case and is the logical man to try them. Judge A. A. Campbell, of the Twenty-first Judicial Circuit, in which Hillsville is situated, would hardly be in a position to preside."

"I think there is no doubt but that Judge Staples will try the men. He will, of course, have the power of designating the place of trial for this, as well as the time of trial, in his hands."

No Demonstration Feared.

The effectiveness with which the case against the other Allens has been prosecuted, as well as the time which has elapsed since the Carroll County shooting, have removed all danger of mob violence, and no special guard, it is expected, will be detailed for the place of trial for this, as well as the time of trial, in his hands.

Deaf Betrayal Report. Cincinnati, September 15.—Handcuffed, guarded by three stalwart detectives and accompanied by the girl who unconsciously gave the police the clue to their hiding place, Sidna Allen and his nephew, Wesley Edwards, who took part in the shooting up a court at Hillsville, Va., on March 14 last, and who were arrested yesterday, arrived here to-night from Des Moines on their way back to the scene of the crime. The trip proved uneventful. Chief of Detective Baldwin acted in behavior and far from a detected frame of mind.

With the exception of Miss Maude Iroler, whose love for Wesley Edwards led the detectives to his hiding place, the entire party apparently "clipped their food, and even the exchanging of jokes was not infrequent on the trip. The younger of the two prisoners as well as the girl herself were solicitous in having a rumor denied that she had deliberately betrayed her sweetheart. Wesley Edwards, Detective Baldwin corroborated their statements and told the story of the events leading up to the capture to prove that the girl was no traitor to her lover. He said that when Edwards left Mount Airy, N. C., the girls home, he had left $50 with her to be used to join him when he was safely secreted. The money was
